HEAR-IT-TIZZ

THAT was quite a New Year's eve. Stories of the longest night of the year are still cropping up. Several days after revelers can no longer hold their heads and make monumental claims, they can gleefully recount disasters which befell friends.

One leading Carmel businessman on New Year's Day had to consult the book for the telephone number of his close lady friend.

Enos Fouratt threw a party in his barn in the Carmel Valley. Betimes, his friends withdrew, gracefully or otherwise, leaving him alone in the barn The long trip to his own bed filled him with distaste, so he made a little pallet of straw and spent the balance of the evening with his horses.

Dr. Ed Mc Cormick ushered in the New Year with a traditional Scotch flourish. Even bagpipes were involved. It seems that it' an old Scotch custom to go out under the stars about midnight and toot an old Highland aire. (It should be perfectly obvious why it's done outside, although the reasons behind the whole affair may be obscure.)

Anyway, after Ed had gone through the ritual he was persuaded to come inside and give a repeat performance for the benefit of those lounging beside the fire. The whole thing was pronounced a success. The Doctor even had kilts for the occassion.

Congratulations to Sabino and Carmen Campos of Monterey who are the proud parents of the first Peninsula baby of 1952. The little boy, six pounds and eight ounces, arrived at 12:48 New Year's morning.

Speaking of babies, congratulations also to two Carmel families. Mr. and Mrs. William Wishart's little airl was born Christmas Day and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald J. Artellan's baby daughter arrived just as 1951 was about to fade out.

Jim Moore, the Carmel engineer has been home from Japan to spend the holidays with his family. He's on some sort of a super secret mission for the government. He may take his family back with him when he returns to the Orient.

Tin Fry, the man who's in everything, is now president of the Monterey County Shrine Club. His most important extra-curricular activity is currently the presidency of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Fred McCargar (recently resigned manager of the County Fair) and his wife have left for Norfolk, Nebraska, where they will be on the spot to welcome a new grandchild. They will be visiting their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pettit.

Dudley Swim, Stanford alumni official, spoke to the Carmel Rotary Club on 'The Alumni Looks at Higher Education. We gather the look is through a jaundiced eye.

The Carmel Board of Realtors is currently campaigning in Washington to stop rent controls being placed on Carmel. Working through both Nixon and Knowland in the Senate and Bramblett in Congress, the board is optimistic about the outcome. Facts and figures about the number and costs of rental units

Carmel Cartoonist Seeks Court Aid To Protect His Rights

Sometimes when a man makes a generous gesture everything turns out well for a while, then it all goes sour. This happened to Carmel cartoonist Bill O'Malley.

A sequel to his famous book 'Two Little Nuns' has come out by another author on the eve of the publication of O'Malley's own sequel to his best-seller of last year. Now O'Malley has started court action to determine whose 'Little Nuns' they are.

It all started back in 1943. At that time O'Malley was drawing cartoons for Extension Magazine, a Chicago Catholic monthly. The editor suggested he include some religious cartoons in each batch of rough sketches. This he did, including several about priests, nuns, altar boys, and monks.

Some of all these types were printed, but the nun cartoons were best received by the readers of the magazine. They wrote letters to the editor when one did not appear each month. Soon the editor was demanding one for each issue.

In the letters the cartoons were referred to as 'those little nuns'. They were soon well-known to magazine readers as 'O'Malley's two little nuns'. Several articles about O'Malley appeared in the magazine characterizing him as 'the creator of the two little nuns'.

In August, 1950 the editor of the magazine telephoned O'Malley and asked permission to reprint the cartoons in book form. He was told that the magazine faced an increase of $21,000 in paper costs for the coming year and that the sale of the book might help defray this increase. He agreed.

After a slow start, the book took hold about last Christmas and sales started to skyrocket. A couple of months later, O'Malley and the magazine agreed that he would get royalties on all sales over 50,000 copies. In about a year there were six printings totaling 215,000 books.

After the agreement on the royalties, Extension presented O'Malley with a contract for a sequel in which he would have signed over all rights to the little nun characters. He refused and signed on instead with a regular publishing house.

The sequel, by another cartoonist, is being published by Extension. It is the magazine's claim that this artist, Joe Lane, is the real creator of the characters because he submitted a nun cartoon to them in 1942, before going to war.

O'Malley's position is that he created the characters which have taken the public's fancy. He acknowledges that anyone has a perfect right to draw nun cartoons, but that THE 'Two Little Nuns' are his.

Furthermore, he doesn't like some of the cartoons in the new book. 'I certainly don't want people to think I did them,' he says. 'Many of them are not funny and several are in bad taste, I believe. I never spoofed religion.'

As a Catholic, O'Malley is disappointed to see the magazine 'deliberately fooling' the public into thinking the new book is a real sequel.

O'Malley has now turned to the courts to try to get back his two little nuns.

TRAGIC HOLIDAYS FOR MONTEREY PENINSULA

Tragedy struck hard at the Monterey Peninsula over the holidays of 1951-52. Three children and three young men met death violently.

Nelson S. Byers of Jack's Peak and Richard Mulholland of Pacific Grove died in the crash of a military transport plane in Arizona last Sunday. Earlier this week, Keith Mac Kenzie of Carmel died in a fire in a guest house, and three small children of Mrs. Christina Ace of Seaside died when their home burned on Christmas night.

Both Byers and Mulholland were returning to military duty in the West after spending the holidays at home. Byers was a West Point Cadet and Mulholland was a Navy petty officer.

Both youths had been outstanding students at Carmel High School. Both were high in scholarship and varsity lettermen in athletics.

SPEND HOLIDAYS HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Freston of Los Angeles spent the Holiday week end at their Monterey Peninsula Country Club home. They have returned to the Southern City, but will be back for the Crosby Tournament.

COW PALACE IN BLACK

For those of you interested in statistics and/or the Cow Palace in San Francisco, we have some of the former on the latter. Nye Wilson, secretary-manager, pronounces 1951 a 'banner year.' A total of 88 performances, covering 165 days, were held. For the shows that charged admissions 673,571 persons paid $1,022,887 to see them. Sonja Henie topped the list, but nothing is said about what her take was.

Incidentally, the Cow Palace is publicly owned--by the state. It opened in 1941 and only nine days of use were recorded that year.

WRITER HERE FOR STORY ON MONTEREY PENINSULA

Herbert Warren Wind, author of 'The Story of American Golf and a member of the New Yorker staff, is currently spending several weeks at Del Monte Lodge while compiling material for an article on the Monterey Peninsula for 'Holiday' magazine. which will appear in that publication some time in 1952.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

Here is an unusual recipe we picked out of "Bottles and Bins", a publication put out monthly by a California winery. Besides a recipe the booklet contains interesting information about wines and other miscellaneous topics.

ROAST LAMB BERTRAM

1 leg of lamb (5 to 6 lbs.)
Peanut oil
Salt
Coarse ground pepper
Rosemary seeds
Cumin seeds
Red Wine (Claret or Burgundy)

Skin and trim the leg of lamb. Rub with peanut oil until thoroughly coated. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Then sprinkle rosemary and cumin seeds generously on all sides. These should stick to the oil. Dip a clean, white cloth in enough red wine to soak it. Wrap the leg of lamb in the soaked cloth. Wrap all in waxed paper and tie securely with string. Place in the meat compartment of the refrigerator and leave it there to absorb the flavorings for at least 24 hours before roasting. Remove from the refrigerator an hour before using. Unwrap and place on a rack in a roasting pan. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Roast at that temperature for 1½ hours, turning the roast once after the one side has browned. Potatoes may be roasted under the rack. If basting is necessary, use more red wine.

CARMEL REAL ESTATE MEN CLOSE $250,000 DEAL

A quarter of a million dollar real estate deal was made this week in Carmel. Corum B. Jackson and James C. Doud of the Carmel Realty Company made the purchase of lots scattered over the Monterey Peninsula.

The land they bought is the remainder of the Willis Walker estate.

Jackson first started selling land for the estate in 1936 when he was made agent for the subdivision of the Mission Tract. This subdividing was done in four stages. During this development program, the land surrounding the Carmel Mission was not offered for sale to the public. The mission later bought it and so the old landmark was protected for all time.

Next the Walker Tract, lying north of the mission, was subdivided and sold by Jackson. Then came about 200 lots in Monte Regio in Monterey. He also sold the property which is now Monte Vista and assisted in the subdivision of that tract.

The property Jackson and Doud bought consists of scattered lots and parcels in all These developments. The total sales value of the land is $250,000.

A real estate agent in Carmel for the past 17 years, Jackson was originally associated with Byington Ford. He bought Ford's interest in the Carmel Realty Company in 1941.

Doud is a member of one of Monterey County's pioneer families. He is associated with Jackson in the company.

The property was purchased from Mrs. Alma Brooks Walker of San Francisco, widow of the late Willis Walker.

KOREAN VETERANS URGED TO CHECK THEIR RIGHTS

Carmel Man Buys Salinas Radio Station KDON

Charles B. Grant, Junipero and 3rd, Carmel, has purchased radio station KDON which has its main offices in Salinas. The station was bought from Paul H. Caswell, publisher of the Salinas Californian.

The transfer of the ownership of the 5,000 watt station must be approved by the Federal Communication Commission in Washington. The reported sale price of the property is $80,000.

Grant, his wife and two sons moved to Carmel three years ago. Prior to that time he was active in radio in Southern California.

LOCAL DOCTORS HEAR HEAD OF STATE MEDICAL GROUP

Dr. H. Gordon Mac Lean, president of the California Medical Association, last night addressed members of the Monterey Medical Society at the Beach Club, Pebble Beach. He discussed the economics of medicine and doctors' services. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Raymond V. Rukke, president of the local medical group.

A new wood preservative, Chemonite, developed at the University of California, combines copper salts to kill fungus decay, arsenic salts to kill termites, and other wood-destroying insects.

Crosby Tournament Time Is Here Again Thursday

This is the time of year when all golfers from the dubbers to the under par boys focus their attention on the Monterey Peninsula. Only a handful of players and a small percentage of the nation's golf fans can participate in or watch the fabulous Bing Crosby Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament.

The rest must be contented with stories in the sports pages of their local newspapers. But due to the unusual nature of the tournament, the top sports writers are here to report the event first-hand. The combination of outstanding personalities and top-flight golf is hard to beat, so the tournament gets amazingly complete coverage from coast to coast by big and little newspapers.

Unlike many special events, the Crosby tournament appeals strongly to those living on the Peninsula. The natives get just as excited as the people who have journeyed many miles to see famous people and the nation's best golfers.

In the tournament each amateur is teamed with a professional. The professionals are playing for the $10,000 prize money and the amateurs are playing mostly for the fun of it. The amateurs are picked from the ranks of the entertainment and sports world with outstanding amateur golfers included. The professional list reads like a Who's Who in golf.

Some of the celebrities invited this year are as follows. From the ranks of the entertainers come Dennis Morgan, Dean Martin, Bob Hope, Dennis O'Keefe, Phil Harris, John Weismuller, Howard Keel, Richard Arlen, John Hodiak, Buddy Rogers, and Bing's brother, Bob.

Sports world figures include Leo Durocher, Lefty O'Doul, Vern Stephens, Bob Lemon, Ralph Kiner, Frankie Albert, and Bob Waterfield.

Amateur golfers who will appear include Ken Venturi, state amateur champion, and Francis D. Ouimet, winner of the U.S. Open in 1913 and the U.S. Amateur in 1914 and 1931.

The program will start next Thursday at 3 P.M. with a golf clinic at the second tee at Pebble Beach. The tournament will then be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday over Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Pebble Beach courses in that order. A total of 84 pairs of golfers will see action.

Yehudi Menuhin who will give a concert tonight at Sunset School Auditorium. His program will include Beethoven, Bach, Mendelssohn, Locatelli, Dvorak, Kreisler and Wienawski. This is one of the Carmel Musis Society's series.

PG & E PRESIDENT SEES BIG INVESTMENT IN '52

This Pacific Gas and Electric Company is getting to be a rather large outfit. PG & E President James B. Black gazes into the future through a press release which came across The Spectator's desk, and he sees a lot.

Mostly the vision seems to be money, but it's a case of money going to be spent. He says nothing about any coming in, but we hope some does anyway.

In 1952, Black predicts that $162 million will be spent by the company to expand gas and electrical service in the state. But this paltry sum looks insignificant beside the $800 000,000 Black says PG & E has spent since the war.

He adds, with a curious note of joy, that by 1953 the company's total postwar investment will be over the $1 billion mark. The Spectator believes that this enthusiasm for spending money was whipped up in the publicity department - not by the board of directors.

WHO IS IT?

(POLAROID One-Minute Photograph)

CHIEF OF POLICE-CLYDE P. KLAUMANN

Carmel has a chief of police who rose through the ranks. His experience runs the entire range of law enforcement work.

Clyde Pattison Klaumann, a native of Monterey, started with the Monterey Department in 1936. He had been on the force eight years when he entered the Navy. After receiving his discharge in 1946, Klaumann enrolled in the Federal Bureau of Investigation school for a three months course.

Back on the Monterey force, Klaumann was made a lieutenant and served in that capacity until he resigned in October, 1950, to assume his duties as Carmel's police chief.

At Monterey High School, Klaumann was an outstanding athlete, winning 13 varsity letters. He was chosen all-CCAL (Coast Counties Athletic League) in both football and basketball. His other varsity sports were baseball and track.

Klaumann married Ruth Benadom of Monterey in 1937, and their son, Clyde, 12, is currently in the 7th grade at Sunset School.

In 1927, Klaumann quarterbacked the Monterey football team to its first CCAL title. On that same team were Attorney Gordon Campbell and Dr. James Hopper, now at the University of California Hospital. Campbell later became an outstanding college backfield man at Stanford.

During summer vacations at high school, Klaumann worked in Carmel for the M.J. Murphy lumber company and got to know the city. At that time Carmel high school students were attending school in Monterey, so he was well acquainted with Carmel families when he took over the chief's job here.

Hunting, fishing and target shooting are the Chief's principal interests during leisure hours. Sports continue to interest him, although he now confines his efforts to an occassional round of golf and softball in the summer league.

GRAMMATICAL ERRORS CAN BE SOURCE OF DISCORD IN FAMILY

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Bad grammar can be the source of great irritation between husband and wife or parent and child. "Ain't" can wreck a home.

To cultivated educated persons, frequent grammatical errors are irritably noticeable, especially in another member of the family. Vexation over a single grammatical mistake can cause a person to be so annoyed at a spouse or child as to overlook the loved one's overwhelming virtues, accomplishments and attractive traits.

Feels Inferior

Consider the young couple recently married. If one of the pair learned to speak with grammatical correctness while the other didn't, the one making grammatical errors may already feel fearful and insecure about speech. Then if nagged by the spouse over bad grammar, how much more insecure and inferior the victim feels. Imagine the mortification if the error should be corrected in the presence of other persons.

If your husband or wife habitually uses a few expressions ungrammatically, prove your sportsmanship and love by saying nothing about it until a time when you are sure you can refer to the matter in such a way as to make your efforts welcome. Provided you can set the stage so your spouse will seek your help, you not only will have removed a source of annoyance to you and of worry to the spouse, but you will also have furthered your mutual affection and companionship as well.

Sometimes it's the adolescent son or daughter who si embarrassed at bad grammar used by one or both parents. Always eager to escape feelings of inferiority and to win self-reminders of grown-upness, the youth may not only feel embarrassed over bad grammar in his parents, but may rudely "correct" them.

Younger parents, knowing that children imitate their speech, are eager to cultivate in themselves good English usage. For any adult or child who feels a bit insecure about proper grammar, I have prepared a special bulletin, "Common Grammatical Mistakes by Parents and Children" (to be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper). Teenagers will also find this bulletin useful for making friends among other youths who speak good English.

Patience Needed

If your child of six, eight or ten constantly uses certain ungrammatical expressions, don't let yourself nag at him about the matter or correct him in angry tones or in any other way that will annoy him. Occasionally when you are serene and persuasive and he is emotionally receptive, suggest to him that if he wants to feel more grown up he might say "-------" instead of "-------." If you will be patient he will in his early teens choose of his own accord to learn to speak correctly.

Anyway, it is far better to hear bad grammar with love than good grammar without it.

Press Research Fight on Polio

The tripled polio incidence that has plagued the nation for the last four years has resulted in three-quarters of all March of Dimes funds being spent on the patient care requirements of the boys and girls, and the men and women, who have fallen victim to the only epidemic disease still on the increase in America.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will continue to pay for patient care of this kind because it realizes the nation must live with polio until it is conquered. But this year it has set out to raise sufficient funds to do the whole job.

That job includes pushing forward on the research front as well as in the field of patient care. Otherwise, the National Foundation contends, the nation will always be fighting polio. The thing to do, it maintains, is to eliminate the need for patient care by protecting man from ever getting polio at all.

From 1938 to September of 1951, grants and appropriations authorized for research by the National Foundation totaled over $14,000,000 and underwrote scientific investigations in 99 leading institutions throughout the country.

March of Dimes research has attacked the problem on a wide front. The fields of chemistry, biology, pathology, physiology, bacteriology, virology and others have been enlisted in this most massive people's attack on a single disease ever launched by a voluntary health agency.

It is encouraging to know that March of Dimes funds make it possible for scientists to say they are now more optimistic than ever in predicting the conquest of polio within the foreseeable future.

But March of Dimes funds are under the severe challenge of a rising, widening tide of polio. Only a rising tide of dimes can stem this challenge.

Electric power was off and on around Robles Del Rio Wednesday. Every time it would go on people would optimistically go back to various jobs, only to find it fail again. Both disconcerting and frustrating.

Speaking of Robles Del Rio, whatever happened to all those petitions sent to Washington re/ the naming of the post office? The Post Office Department boys may find them now since all of Washington seems to searching in corners for dirty linen.

The Del Monte Kennel Club, the Salinas Valley Kennel Club, and the Monterey Bay Spaniel Club are planning a dinner at the Mission Inn Monday night. It will be a 'no.host' affair--just a get together. The Del Monte and Salinas Valley clubs are holding their shows on consecutive dates this year, June 7 and 8 This is being done to attract some dogs and their fanciers up from the southland.

PAY PHONES NOW DEMAND NICKLE BEFORE TONE

Starting today, users of public telephone in Carmel will have to deposit their nickels in order to get a dial tone. In the past they have waited for the dial tone before placing the coin.

D.D. Muir local telephone company manager, said the change was made because of involved mechanical reasons he couldn't explain to The Spectator in less than an hour.

Joyful over getting back to his wife, Lois, and their 17 month daughter, Connie, is Marine Cpl. Delbert Samuel Wermuth Jr., first Carmel youth to return after being wounded in Korean action.

Ever since shrapnel nicked his jugular vein, medics have marvelled at his recovery under 'impossible' odds.

Home on a 30 day leave, Del will relate his battle experiences Monday night at the monthly meeting of Carmel Post, American Legion.

U.S. EQUESTRIAN TEAM WINS PRIZE OF NATIONS IN MEXICAN EXHIBITION

The U. S. Equestrian Team has demonstrated clearly it has a chance at the 1952 Olympic jumping title by a victory over Mexico's crack team.

The last international competition of 1951 was held at Monterrey, Mexico, the middle of last month, and the U.S. team topped the others entered by three and three-quarters points in the Prize of Nations event.

The team has now disbanded for the holidays and will gather again in the East in March. The three-man team and entourage will sail for Europe in May or June. They plan to enter several continental shows before going to Helsinki in August for the Olympic Games.

One of the elimination contests held to select the U.S. team was held at the Monterey County Fair and Horseshow. Two of the riders seen here, Norma Lauer and Barbara Bush, rode in the finals at Fort Riley but failed to make the team.
